ISLAMIC VIEWS OF TURKEY'S TREATY.

INDIA DISAPPROVES.

CONSERV. May 17.
The English papers in India, commenting on the Turkish peace treaty, consider that Turkey got off more lightly owing to the Moslem agitation in India. The Indian papers (vernacular) severely condemn the treaty and consider that Moslem claims were completely ignored. Lord Chelmsford has issued to the Moslems a message of encouragement and sympathy in connection with the Turkish treaty which, although in accordance with the high principles applied to other peace settlements, includes terms which Lord Chelmsford fears will be painful to all Moslems. He eulogises the war services of Indians who contributed so much to the allied ideals of justice and humanity, and believes that the pre-war friendship with Turkey will quickly revive and a regenerate Turkey stand again as the pillar of the Islamic faith.

LORDLY LEGISLATION.

HEREDITARY LEGISLATOR MOOTS UNWORKABLE BILL.

LONDON, May 18.

In the House of Lords, Lord Stanhope, in moving the second reading of the British nationality and status of aliens Bill, said it largely modified the Act of 1914 and subsequent measures. He contended that foreigners ought not to be admitted while ex-service men were walking the streets unemployed.

The Lord Chancellor declared the proposals 'wholly unworkable'. The bill could not be amended. Inter alia, it would involve a revolution of the whole system existing as a result of repeated conferences between the home and dominions governments. It would involve a breach of understanding with the latter and constitute an attempt to legislate for the dominions within their own territories, which they would undoubtedly most deeply resent, and where it would be wholly impossible to give effect. The bill was dropped without a division.

IRISH REBELLION.

LONDON, May 18.

Indicating that Macready is to have unlimited call upon the army for use in Ireland, Bonar Law in the House of Commons declared that the government would send any troops that the Irish executive requested. Meanwhile the state in Londonderry is electric. A military troops with machine-guns and armoured cars are posted at certain points. The situation in Ulster appears to be developing according to the forecast of Sunday morning. It is feared the covenanters may break all bounds if the Sinn Fein movement further spreads in the north-east counties.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR IRELAND.

LONDON, May 17.

Two thousand troops have landed at Bantry and been distributed throughout west Cork, where they will be stationed at points five miles apart.

RUBBING IT IN.

MAYENCE, May 17.

The evacuation of the towns on the right bank of the Rhine was carried out this morning. The population was warned by a laconic proclamation by General Degoutte, saying "The French keep their word."

U. K. POPULATION STILL GROWING.

LONDON, May 18.

The quarterly return of marriages, births, and deaths in England and Wales shows 271,082 births, which is a record. The deaths numbered 137,637, whereof 4,037 were due to influenza. Infant mortality represented 68 per thousand, which is 32 per thousand below the average of the ten preceding first quarters. 280,760 births and 147,022 deaths were registered in the three months ending December 31 in the United Kingdom. The increase of population, therefore, is 133,738. Marriages in the same quarter totalled 239,460.

E. R. H.

DUNEDIN, May 17.

The Prince of Wales was warmly welcomed after the Royal train had traversed twenty miles of outlying homesteads and villages, each blazing with bonfires, while the inhabitants assembled in the glare to cheer the Royal passenger.

COUNTRY CRICKET.

LONDON, May 17.

Kent beat Warwick by five wickets.
Yorks beat Derby by an innings and 223 runs.
Notts beat Leicester by an innings and 154 runs.
Lancs beat Northants by an innings and two runs.

PRACTICAL CHARITY.

LONDON, May 18.

It is officially announced that the Treasury has spent £452,329 since June last in grants to voluntary societies for the relief of the famine-stricken areas of Europe, in connection with a scheme whereby the Treasury pays a pound for every pound voluntarily raised.

GERMAN INDEMNITY FIXED.

PARIS, May 17.

Well informed circles state that Mr. Lloyd George and M. Millerand laid down at Hythe the sum of 125 milliard marks as the minimum of the German indemnity, in order to avoid difficulties of the fluctuation in rates of exchange. Mr. Lloyd George's refusal to recognise the priority of France to reparation was especially due to objections by British Dominions, who are counting on the money due from Germany in order to assure payment of soldiers' pensions. The French delegates proposed the payment of the indemnity in thirty-three annual instalments and the raising of a large loan covered by Germany and the Allies with the indemnity as security.

EARLIER TELEGRAMS.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)

POLISH OFFENSIVE AGAINST RUSSIA.

LONDON, May 17th.
In the House of Commons, replying to Mr. Barnes and Colonel Malone, Mr. Bonar Law stated that, in October, 1919, when it was feared that the Russian Soviet Government would attack the Russian border States, Poland asked for British assistance in military equipment. Owing to our commitments elsewhere, the Government was unable to give financial assistance, but offered to supply a certain quantity of surplus stores. If Poland undertook the cost of moving them and of transport arrangements, the offer was accepted. Consequently, the material became the property of the Polish Government which is now shipping a part of it. Otherwise, no assistance has been, or is being, given to Poland.

TO RELIEVE DISTRESS IN

RUSSIAN RUSSIA.

Des Moines (Iowa), May 17th.
Professor W. T. Davidson, Chairman of the Board of Red Cross Governors, in a speech at the conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, urged that Congress appropriate half a billion dollars as a fifteen-year loan to relieve distress in Eastern Europe where he declared thousands of men, women and children were dying of starvation and disease.

TASK OF BRITISH NAVY.

LONDON, May 17th.

Speaking at the Mansion House luncheon after receiving the Freedom of the City, Lord Jellicoe anticipated the happy years in New Zealand whose people he and his wife had already learned to love. Emphasising the dependence of the sea communications on the British Navy and the navies of the Dominions, Lord Jellicoe warned against allowing the strength of the Empire Navy to slide away until it became certain that the present anti-war measures would be effective.

WORK FOR EX-SERVICE MEN.

LONDON, May 17th.

An official statement shows that ex-service men employed in the Government offices total 121,133, of whom 33,344 are disabled men.

The Post Office is the largest employer, with 50,507 men, including 17,144 disabled.

PROHIBITION AMENDMENT.

WASHINGTON, May 17th.

The Supreme Court has been closed for the recess till June 1st. No decision has been given as regards the Prohibition amendment.

OBITUARY.

New York, May 17th.

The death is announced of Mr. Levi P. Morton, ex-Vice-President of the United States.

GALLIPOLI CAMPAIGN.

LONDON, May 17th.

Sir Ian Hamilton's Gallipoli Diary has been published. While it adds no fresh information about the operations, it is most frank in its comments and makes it clear that the expedition suffered throughout from the haste with which it was inaugurated and inadequacy of preparations. It emphasises the continuous shortage of Staff Officers, men and ammunition.

At one period the officers' shortage was 1,450, to meet which twenty-five youngsters were sent out after incomplete training.

Lord Kitchener, in offering Sir Ian Hamilton the command, made it clear that the British Headquarters in France disapproved of the scheme. Sir Ian Hamilton describes Lord Kitchener as an individual and a master of expedients, but Lord Kitchener, in 1915, had lost the faculty of forcing others to act. While he still had moments of God-sent intuition, he was no longer the old Kitchener of Khartoum and Pretoria.

Sir Ian Hamilton contends that the Suva landing was the undoubted right course to capture the peninsula, but the chances were thrown away from sheer lack of energy and bad timing.

THE FRENCH OCCUPATION.

BERLIN, May 17th.

The hostages whom the French took as a precautionary measure in connection with the evacuation of Frankfurt and Hanau have been released.

MAYENCE, May 17th.

General Vidaud, in bidding farewell to the Frankfurt civil authorities, paid a tribute to the population's calm attitude.

FOOD PRICES.

LONDON, May 17th.

The Labour Gazette states that the retail prices, including food, clothing, fuel, light and rent, on May 15, were about 14 1/2 per cent above those in July, 1914.

The Food Controller's statistics relating to food show an increase of 146 per cent.

The Labour Gazette says the United Kingdom food prices have risen less than those of France, Italy and Sweden. They are not much in excess in the United States. It adds that the present level, however, is undoubtedly a matter of most serious concern, and concludes that prices in the coming summer will reach a very high level, owing to the cost of importable food, the partial removal of the bread subsidy and increased price of sugar and potatoes.

The percentage of the unemployed decreased from 2.63 at the end of March to 2.80 at the end of April.

FRENCH STRIKE MENACE.

ANGLO-AUSTRIAN BANK
ASSETS.IMPORTANT INTERNATIONAL BANKING QUESTION.

In the Chancery Division Mr. Justice

Russell had before him a summons taken out by the Controller of the Anglo-Austrian Bank, London Branch, asking the court to determine whether or not the London County

Westminster and Parr's Bank had a lien upon the assets of the Anglo-

Austrian Bank held by them, the controller arguing that the assets should really go to the bank of England in discharge of the liabilities of the Anglo-Austrian Bank.

Mr. Schiller, K.C., who appeared with Mr. Milley for the Controller, said in substance the Controller was the Bank of England, and the Public

Custodian, represented by the Austen-

Cartmell, supported the Controller.

At the outbreak of war, continued

counsel there was a great danger of a financial crisis. There were a number of acceptances in the hands of people in this country, and in order Treasury sanction was introduced, by which the Bank of England took over all the acceptances, the liabilities to be discharged a year after the conclusion of hostilities. These bills were held by the Bank of England, and so far as he (counsel) knew many of them were still so held, the Bank of England still having a large lien against the Anglo-Austrian Bank.

The enemy banks had, of course, to close their doors, and they were not allowed to carry on any banking business except under licence from the Secretary of State. Section 24 of the Aliens Restriction Consolidation Order, 1914, which was passed on December 9th 1914, provided that an alien could not carry on any banking business except by consent in writing of the Secretary of State.

It was further provided that alien bank should not part with any securities in their possession, but should deposit all such money or securities as the Secretary of State may direct.

Licences were, in fact, granted by the Secretary of State to enemy banks to carry on their business, but not to extend beyond completion of transactions entered into before the war.

The Restriction Order made the London branches of the enemy banks wholly separate concerns from the headquarters of the banks. Power was given to the courts, and afterwards extended to the Board of Trade, to make orders vesting enemy property in the custodian. All the securities held by enemy banks in their own or customers' names were so vested in the custodian. An order was made winding up the business of the London branch of the Anglo-

Austrian Bank, and then Parr's Bank put forward this claim, the question being raised when the custodian required delivery of the securities.

His Lordship.—How does Parr's

Bank come into the matter?

Mr. Schiller said Parr's was one of the clearing banks of the Anglo-

Austrian Bank in London. None of the foreign bankers had any seat in the clearing house, and they had to employ a clearing bank for the purpose of dealing with their cheques.

Continuing, counsel said all these foreign bankers had in their possession a number of securities, some of which were deposited in the name of actual owners, and as to these they knew the name of the owner, but some would come from other banking institutions on the Continent, which might be enemy or neutral, and which were never brought to this country, but they were deposited with a branch of the Anglo-Austrian Bank in Budapest, which held them on behalf of Parr's as security. In consequence of the outbreak of war the loan could not be repaid. So far as the Controller knew, these Crown rentes were in the strong room of the bank in Budapest, to be handed over when the loan was paid off.

Apart from this Parr's Bank had entered into a transaction with the Budapest branch of the Anglo-

Austrian Bank, by which they had bought from them direct the sum of 510,000 kronen in bills of some sort.

He (counsel) thought they were bills of exchange, but they had never seen them. They knew nothing except that they were told by an official of Parr's Bank that they had been endorsed. These bills also could not be dealt with during the war, and they also had to be in a state of suspended animation.

It was in respect of these two transactions that Parr's Bank was claiming a lien. He (counsel) submitted that that claim was absolutely without any sort of foundation.

Mr. Austen-Cartmell said the securities he was concerned with were those of the customers, and he wished to claim the benefit of Mr.

Schiller's argument.

Mr. Schiller said that it is his information was right the value of the 300,000 roubles at the time of the debt would more than wipe out the debt to the bank.

Mr. Farwell, for Parr's Bank, claimed that his clients had a right to these securities, and he asked the court not to make an order giving them up until the debts were paid.

His Lordship said it was obvious claims must succeed, and he gave judgment for the Controller, who made the application.

"TRUTH, JUSTICE, PUBLIC SERVICE"

HONGKONG, THURSDAY, MAY 20, 1920.

WE FORGET SO SOON.

One of our esteemed colleagues in some comments on the Polish-Russian situation remarks that "few governments probably have a better intelligence service regarding the conditions within Soviet Russia than the Polish government." The information published from this source would indicate that Soviet Russia is in a very bad way indeed. The China Mail does not doubt the statement, so far as it goes, in the least. The China Mail expects that Soviet Russia is in a bad way, though not in such a bad way as the Polish information and the newspaper revelations make out. Poland is "occupying" a large portion of Soviet Russia, beyond the boundaries set by the Paris Peace Conference, as already clearly shown in the China Mail. She will be more gravely occupied with that occupation, and for a longer time, than she expects. This is a China Mail prophecy, however, let us stick to facts. The Polish intelligence service in Russia may be good, but are we getting in Polish communiques just what Poland gets from her intelligence service? That is a very big question. Most men will answer it promptly, and in one way, unless they have forgotten the commonest phenomenon of a nation at war. When our share in the Great War began, we had a good intelligence service. That is now admitted. But its intelligence stopped in the department designed to receive and use it. We, the people, did not get it. What we got, and that consistently from the beginning, and long before it was true, was a serial story with sensational chapters. The Germans were in a bad way—ripe for revolution—starving—the Russian steam-roller was going over them—they had more infants in the front line—their "flower" was wiped out—their Kaiser was dying—their soldiers had to be forced to advance by their own officers' revolvers—their guns had to be chained to their guns—and much, much more like that, which made our soldiers who knew laugh and swear. We did not blame our excellent intelligence service for it, nor do we blame the Polish intelligence service for the nonsense

now being repeated. We have explained the idea. We are not at war with Russia, but we hate and fear Bolshevism. The Poles are fighting the Bolsheviks. The journalists know which way our sympathies lie. They try to please us by attributing the Polish victory, by stuffing us with stupid lies that bear their manufacturers' marks upon them. Poland may beat Russia. Victory does not always go to the biggest battalions. But if any reader really cares, is anxious, is reading these silly messages as "news," we warn him to wait and see. Trust nobody, not even the China Mail, partisan statements least of all. Lord Curzon was dishonest in blaming Soviet Russia for starting the war with Poland by massing troops and material on the Polish front, because he omitted to mention what he must have known, that the Polish front is far from Poland; well within Soviet Russia. Poland has been scolded by the Allied ambassadors for this encroachment. She cannot now reckon on Allied support, although she seems to be assured of the "moral" support, somewhat immorally patterned, of the commoner sort of Allied journalist. That's the truth of the situation as nearly as we can reach it.

ADVERSARIA.

When a Malay has brooded over a grievance for some time, and dwelt on some wound to his amour propre, he gets into a state of mind which is quite beyond reason. He runs "amok." He knows that his indiscriminate slaughter is irrelevant, that it cannot do any good. He knows that during his career of murder he will sooner or later be struck down. Yet he does it. We bettle those who come in his way. Woman or child, old or young, his waving "keris" will let their blood, without in any way benefiting him. We hope the Home authorities have not got to the "amok" stage in Ireland. Recent telegrams told us of a tremendous plan of campaign, of rushing reinforcements, of a naval, military, and economic blockade, of a wide area of Ireland cordoned and "sent to Coventry." What good will all that achieve? If none, why do it? If, incensed by the outrages, they decide deliberately to do what the Japanese had to do to the aboriginal Formosans, and embark on a war of extermination, that's different. It would have some sense in it. But —

Rome has made POST-MORTEM it up to Jeanne COMBESSEN. d'Arc for her cruel persecution, false trial, and cruel murder. With customary pomp and ceremony she was enrolled at St. Peter's, Rome, amongst the saints. She will now be canonized and prayed to. It is a curious whirling of priestcraft and superstition.

The Times correspondent sent at Kieff, is a WORK, clumsy performer on the propagandist mouth-organ. The picture of the Kieff people standing for hours to cheer the incoming Poles was believable enough. The description of the mess in which the Bolsheviks had left the city was not. But it might have remained for the final flourish, namely, that the Reds have no fighting spirit, that the Poles were by a regiment of Chinese which ought to the last man (troughs of laughter) and by some mounted troops manned by Germans. That was too transparent. After that, the Morning Post's statement that the Poles have "shattered the Soviet regime" comes as an anticlimax. We are not really concerned either way, but we resent being treated as a sucker. A good journalist's lie is worth high pay, but a clumsy journalistic lie is a weariness to the flesh. Some of you, convinced that Bolshevism is a menace, will be heartened by the news that the Poles have shattered it. We don't blame you. But if events show that it was merely unintelligent anticipation, you will be disappointed. That is not fair to you. Long training has enabled us to sort news from propaganda by "feel," almost invariably without error. So watch your China Mail headlines and comments.

A Medical Board recently sat to examine the mental condition of the Adversarian. They decided, with one dissentient, that he is insane, but harmless. This verdict would probably apply with nearly equal justice to the general body of mankind, which seems to be going fishing without bait to a pond that never had a fish in it. If you can interpret that cryptic comment, you're sane.

The Manchester Guardian, B. LAW'S Diary, easily the most level-headed journal now publishing in England, scores heavily off a recent utterance by Bonar Law. With Ireland only in his mind, and American-English sentiment to be repressed, he said:

"There is not a man in this House... who would not admit that the connection of the Dominions with the Empire depends upon themselves. If the self-governing Dominions, Australia, Canada, chose to-morrow to say, 'We will no longer make a part of the British Empire, we would not try to force them. Dominion Home Rule means the right to decide their own destinies.'"

He forgot all about South Africa, where there is a strong secession party. The Hertog party hailed B. Law's blunder with joy, remarking that it was "so clear, striking, and decided" that there was nothing to add thereto. "The South African people now know their rights," General Smuts must have been very sick to think his contrary efforts should be at the mercy of such idiots as now misrule England. To avert misunderstanding, let it be understood that that last comment is China Mail, not Manchester Guardian.

The talk at the annual conference of the Labour Party made pleasant reading. "George Benson of North Salford was not the only one who preserved balance, but as he was typical of the majority we quote him. He believed in international socialism, provided that British socialists were allowed to work out their own salvation in their own way. He did not belong to the physical force party. He was not in favour of putting a rifle into the hands of every Liberal and Tory working man and of distributing bombs to blacklegs. Was the social revolution going to be brought about by putting rifles into the hands of pot-house babblers who read John Bull? A rifle would not bring a man from the wrong side of the ballot-box to the right side of a barricade. That's fine. Let them leave physical force to the reactionaries, and they'll win some day. Physical force never yet won anything. Propaganda is more powerful than powder. It was, after all, propaganda that won the great war for us, after four years of physical force had arrived at something like stalemate."

Note carefully that there are two kinds of propaganda, true and false. It is difficult to say which is best for truth, for propaganda is like poison gas. When it is the false kind it is apt to blow back and knock out its own producers. The Germans often discovered for themselves that German gas was a beastly thing. When they discovered that their political gas was equally treacherous, their morale went. That was in our mind when we wrote that propaganda won the Great War for us. The physical force propaganda of the Bolsheviks will destroy Bolshevism. The physical force propaganda of the reactionaries will defeat reaction. Then the propaganda of truth and calm reason will get a hearing, and a chance to work.

The noxious influence of newspaper office atmosphere on literature is well known. Many writers of literature have been connected with journalism, but it was not until they finally escaped from journalism that they wrote literature. It is certain that Barrie did not write Barriescapely while he worked on papers. If someone points out, as is likely, exceptions in the cases of Bernard Shaw or Chesterton, the answer is that neither has yet succeeded in writing literature, but only journalism. Excellent journalism to be sure, but only that. Our readers know how impressed we were with the literary output of Stella Benson, which was not lessened after making her acquaintance. She is a rare soul, has a rare mind. When we heard that she had written for the Morning Post an article on Hongkong, not to be printed till after her departure, our excitement was great, and our impatience to read it spoiled a breakfast. Alas! Her spoken comments on Hongkong are richer than her journalism. Beyond some characteristically humorous suggestions for defeating boredom in Hongkong, of which her best was "tensing the sensitive plant," she shied at the job. She bawled. We had hoped for some comments on the quaint regulations of the Helena May Institute where she stayed, for a note on the refined badness of the Hongkong dinner party, for certain animadversions on our neglect of culture. These and more demand analysis and exposition by a vision fresh as hers; but (probably because her illness robbed her of the necessary gift she withheld it.

In one thing we have agreed with her, that boredom is possible in a place like Hongkong. We know that she herself was not bored, though she pretended to be, and in her newspaper article suggests that she was. The author of "Living Alone" could never be bored in a place like this, where every hour of every day offers meat for the appetite for life and drink for the thirst of the humorous observer. Her jibe about the "daily round and common task" was to us rather pathetic. The "daily round" of our land is not for all of us, and we cannot imagine anyone not absolutely empty-headed growing tired of it, or of the comfort and extra charm that the Repulse Bay Hotel adds to it. The "common task" is a reference in her case, to the fact that she found it necessary to teach in a Hongkong school. That taxed her physical strength unfairly, but it could never have taxed her mind. In better health, she would have regarded it as a valuable experience, with "copy" in it.

If you make no deduction, you cannot take out money from a bank, except as a successful burglar. We thought of this pithy image while re-reading Gilbert Frankau's "Woman of the Horizon" last night, in which that Kipling fluke into genuine poetry is quoted:

"Through the steady fore-foot snores of floors,
Where the scared whale flukes in flame.
Unless you have travelled over one of those oily calm seas on such a clear night, and that not in the smoking-room, but on deck, forward, you do not get the idea of the planet-powdered floor, you do not understand how a whale disturbed, diving with a flurry, makes a little lake of blue flame or phosphorescence, and you cannot realize the aptness of the reference to the purring of the vessel's cut-water in such a sea. "Snore," of course, is a sailorwise term for it, often used before Kipling, and the noise is less syncretized than human snoring. "Scared" is perhaps too strong a word for the mild alarm of the disturbed leviathan, but we can think of no other monosyllable to fit. "Flukes," as a verb for the up-ending movement of the beast, is one of those technicalities that Kipling loves to collect and employ, and could not be bettered here. The phosphorescence may not be "flame" in a scientific sense, but in the circumstances it compels the idea. "Planet-powdered floor" is perfect. Our Hongkong is replete with soul-stirring vignettes that ask for similar word painting."

The idea is so simple, so fundamentally proper and sensible. Picture your men in the night. They jump aside from the poisonous reptile, climb trees to escape the canivores, dodge the nish of the wild bull. Even then insect and microbe and poison lie in wait for them. Human life is one constant dodging of death. Two dodgers approach the same point in the jungle, and attack each other. Does it seem sane or sensible that with so many natural enemies, they should fail to combine, having the same interests, the same perils, the same enemies. With the forms of peril changed a little, modern man (in the circumstances we must not refer to him as "civilized") is no wiser than primal man. The thought is bitterly but incisively packed into the following lines by Max Grossman:

And I had taken it all so seriously—
Trudged through the mud and the gore of it,
Lived with the dead and the dying,
Crying into the night with a breaking heart,
Pained to the quick with the utter worthlessness of life!
But a gleam there was and it led me on
To die for the living day.
When volcanic passion would subside
And man become free—
Free to league in a world of peace—
No wars to threaten—no wars!

I did not know that old men were mumbering in their sleeves—
It was their last joke and they chuckled—
Hee, hee, hee! April fool, April fool!
I see the joke now—ha, ha, ha! It is funny!
Let's laugh together—ho, ho, ho!—it sure is one on us!
Now that men of

ARE YOU a good will be a pessimist? ing positively to beg support for the idea of the L.O.N., and their pleading seems to be met chiefly by supercilious jeers, we must demand that you, who think there is "nothing in it," that it is impracticable, Utopian, all the things you have been saying (and thereby helping to make so) shall define your position. Do you believe that mankind is incapable of progress from the "tooth and claw stage"? If so, you may be right. But in that case why bother with any laws at all? Why not get back to the original anarchy, and have a good time while it lasts? You have gone some way. You have insisted on going so far. Why this sudden stop? What you have started you can continue, if you like, if you think. Those of you who jeer at the L.O.N., who speak against it, why do you do it? Do you hate the ideal of it? Do you prefer to add to the perils that are inevitable the extra perils you manufacture? You appear to us like men who have led a procession of happy strollers along a lovely lane, out of a wilderness, leading to cultivated lands and gardens visible beyond. So far you came quite cheerfully. Briars that impeded your steps you pushed aside or tore away. Now you have come to a gate, and you halt, and turning to your fellow travellers, you seem to take pleasure in crying: "Stop. This is a silly lane. It leads nowhere. We can go no further." Have another look, friends. Consider. Is the gate locked? Goodwill is the key that will open it. Is it bolted and barred? You have hands; withdraw those bolts and bars. Is there barbed wire? Cut it. However that gate be fastened, friends, by the bars of pessimistic hopelessness, by the bolts of selfish interests, by whatsoever the parable can suggest, a gate is only a gate, and you are men. Lift the damned thing off its hinges, before admitting defeat. Look. Think. Don't be so quick to announce failure.

In connection with a war memorial we note CLICHE. "those whom it is our duty to honour." Analyse it. It is a reference to those whom we do honour. Honour is not a task, a duty. It is like love. The moment a man becomes conscious that it is his duty to love his wife, it is certain he has ceased to love her. Honour and love and faith are involuntary emotions. They are not voluntary, compelled by facts and not by will power. A duty is a debt we discharge, a due we pay. Honour is something that follows naturally. It is possible that it might be a social duty to pretend to honour, as when we lift our hat to a person you do not respect; but genuine honour, involuntary honour, the honour that we cannot withhold because it belongs, can never be connected with the idea of duty.

We can see the idea, or, think we can, in a system of shifting our cadets from job to job. They gain experience for still higher posts. In the meantime, that is to say all the time, so long as the system goes on, we suffer. We get square posts in round holes. We get good tinkers solving algebra, and recent aboe-

THE HOME RULE BILL.

PROTECTING THE MINORITY.

LONDON, May 18.
In the House of Commons during the discussion on the Home Rule Bill Sir Samuel Hoare moved an amendment establishing a second chamber for both Southern and Northern Ireland.

Mr. Long said the Government desired to make their proposals part of a federal plan wherein Great Britain and Ireland could participate and the central Parliament of which would be in London. The Government believed that in a federal system the best security for the minority would be found in a central Parliament. The Government proposed definitely to accept the principle of a second chamber for each of the two Irish Parliaments. He emphasised that this second chamber must be so constituted as to provide a real protection for the minority.

RICE CONTRACT.

CLAIM FOR DAMAGES.

Before Mr. Justice Wood, the Puisse Judge, in the Summary Court this afternoon Tsurutani & Co., a Japanese firm, sued the Wah Yik Loong Firm, which was represented by Mr. B. L. Potter, for $105 claimed in respect of a rice contract.

Mr. A. H. Crew, who appeared for the plaintiff firm, said that a counter claim had been filed. Damages were claimed for failure to deliver 150 piculs of rice to the plaintiff firm which had purchased it by sample. The plaintiff firm which had a head office in Kobe with branches in Japan, on the China Coast, and in Hongkong, supplied goods to the Toyo Kisen Kaisha. In this case they received an order for certain rice to be shipped on March 11 on one of the company's steamers. In consequence of this order from the T.K.K. the plaintiff firm entered into a contract with the defendant firm for rice of quality of which they had been given a sample by defendant firm. Owing to the projected departure of the ship there was no time to purchase another quality when that supplied by the defendant firm proved to be inferior to the sample quality order. The amount involved in the case was small and the profit infinitesimal. It was more a matter of principle as since the transaction the plaintiff firm, which had previously had a valuable business with the T.K.K., had received no further orders from that company. The rice in question was a mixture and there was no quotation for a mixture but the price of all kinds of rice had risen during the period in question.

NEW MOTOR-BOAT.

A SMART INVENTION.

The Graphic publishes an illustration of a motor-boat which employs neither propeller, air screw nor paddle, but is literally blown along the water by two hydraulic jets formed by a special pump near the stern. It has further no rudder, being steered and manoeuvred also by the pump. The inventor of this wonderful boat is Major J. H. W. Gill, formerly of Messrs. Walker, Sons & Co., and of the Ceylon Engineers. The boat is devised for inland waterways to avoid the endless trouble caused by weeds choking the propeller and rudder.

makers spoiling pots. The occasion of this note is the announcement that Mr. N. L. Smith, second police magistrate, is going now to superintend Imports and Exports, the Official Receiver taking his place on the bench. He will probably handle Imports and Exports quite efficiently. The Official Receiver may make a good magistrate. We don't know. What we do know is that Hongkong has suffered much from bad magistrates, and that Mr. N. L. Smith was one of the best we have had. We regard the magistrate's job as above all the others in importance, and it should retain the best men when it finds them. It requires sustained study as well as natural qualities of head and heart, and good as he was, Mr. N. L. Smith would have been better still in a year or two. He will probably come back to it, but after an interruption unlikely to assist his progress. The game of "general post" might be profitably played in all the other departments, but the judicial function should be confined to experts and specialists.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

To-day's dollar is worth 4s. 3½d.

Bishop Norris, of north China, en route to the Lambeth Conference, will preach twice at St. John's Cathedral on Sunday.

A special meeting of the Sanitary Board has been summoned for this afternoon to consider special measures in connection with plague.

There will be a musicale at the Helena Mav Institute on Thursday, May 27, at 5.15 p.m. open to members and their friends. Tea will be served between 4 and 5 o'clock for which there will be a charge of 50 cents per head.

Mr. N. L. Smith, second Police Magistrate, has been appointed Superintendent of Imports and Exports, and will take up his new duties next week. Mr. J. Lloyd, Official Receiver, will succeed Mr. Smith at the Magistracy.

The Canton Government has granted a bill with an area of 5,753 cheng to the Institution for the Poor. It is proposed to erect a building there and the Military Government has donated $23,000 towards the cost of the work.

Over 40 pictures, including Mr. P. Atomi's striking "Ikao in Winter" ($650) and other beautiful works painted by prominent Japanese artists, were sold at the art exhibition opened in St. Andrew's Hall yesterday afternoon by members of the Tokyo Artists' Club.

Mr. A. H. Crew this morning appeared before Mr. R. O. Hutchison at the Magistracy, as complainant in a case in which a Chinese was charged with the theft of a quantity of aerated water bottles from Mr. Crew's residence, No. 66, The Peak. The defendant admitted the offence, but said he thought they were not wanted. Mr. Crew said that he had very often missed empty aerated water bottles during the month, and as the result of watch being kept, the defendant was discovered to be the thief. Mr. Hutchison passed sentence of three weeks' hard labour.

When a Chinese was this morning charged before Mr. R. O. Hutchison at the Magistracy with the theft of a door, he said: "I took it to sleep on." Inspector Caygill said that the case was an echo of the recent fire which broke out in a spirits shop in Yumail. The work of rebuilding the house had been assigned to a contractor, and the latter's job had already started on the job. Last night after the workmen had knocked off work, the defendant strolled into the gutted building and took away the door. It was undamaged by fire, and the contractor had intended to re-use it. Sentence of three weeks' hard labour was passed.

Before Mr. N. L. Smith at the Magistracy this morning, a Chinese was charged with the unlawful possession of a revolver. He was noticed acting in a suspicious manner in Hollywood Road last night by a Chinese detective, who searched him and found the weapon concealed in his girdle. When the detective attempted to arrest the defendant, he struggled violently and put up a stubborn fight before he was eventually overpowered by the detective and removed to the station. He was sentenced to six months' hard labour, and the revolver was confiscated.

CHILD CRUELLY
MURDERED.

STRANDED WITH IRON BAR

The revolting details of one of the most cruel child murders were outlined before Mr. R. O. Hutchison, at the Magistrate's yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Leo Longinotto, Assistant Crown Solicitor, applied for the extradition of two Chinese who are wanted by the Canton authorities for armed robbery and murder of an infant, in the San Wui district on April 15.

The first witness was Chief Detective Inspector Murrison who gave evidence of the fugitives' arrest here, and their identification on April 20, by two women as having been concerned in the looting of Leung village, in the district of San Wui. The identification was made in the presence of Mr. T. H. King, D.S.P. Detective Sergeant Doring was responsible for the fugitives' arrest in Hollywood Road.

A Chinese woman, the mother of the murdered child, stated that she and her two children, a girl aged twelve, and a boy aged five, were in bed in their house in the village at 11 p.m., on February 14 when she heard the sound of someone breaking open the door. A few minutes later five men burst into the house. Two of the intruders were the fugitives in the dock. They lit a lamp, and one of the fugitives snatched the boy from witness's arms, and tried to strangle the terrified child. Failing to choke it with his hands, the outlaw placed the child against a bedpost, and putting an iron bar across his neck pressed it down with both hands until the boy died. In the meantime, the first fugitive threw the girl on the bed and bound her hands and feet with stout ropes. Witness was also bound and gagged by one of the other intruders who wedged a piece of bamboo in her mouth and tied it tightly, hurting her considerably. When, in her desperation to save her child, witness struggled, the men beat her mercilessly until the blood spurted out of her eyes and ears. The robbers then ransacked the house and stole all the valuables they could lay their hands on.

At this stage, his Worship told Mr. Longinotto that before going any further, he would like to be told what was the motive of the second fugitive in killing the child. It was a most brutal deed.

Mr. Longinotto said he could not suggest any motive. It was certainly a very horrible deed. The men's intention was robbery.

Chief Detective Inspector Murrison said that the terrified child cried loudly when the men entered the house, and they killed him because they were afraid his yelling would attract the neighbours. The child's father was one of the richest men in the village, having amassed a fortune abroad. A village watchman, also took part in the robbery, and then to hide his guilt, he pretended to join in the chase of the robbers, firing two shots at random during the pursuit.

Proceeding, the woman said that she had known the fugitives by sight for a considerable time every since her marriage. She released her daughter after the robbers left the house. The girl was badly bruised about the legs and ankles where the ropes had been tightly knotted. Her mouth, too, was bleeding on account of the gag.

The woman having completed her evidence, his Worship enquired why the woman's daughter was not a witness. In view of the circumstances, he said, he must take a more serious view of this case than any ordinary extradition proceedings which had come before him. While not for a moment suggesting that the case was not perfectly genuine, he thought it would be better to have the woman's evidence corroborated by at least another witness.

Mr. Longinotto agreed. After other witnesses had been heard, the evidence of these people mostly dealing with the chase of the robbers, his Worship remanded the case in order that Chief Detective Inspector Murrison might secure the girl to corroborate her mother's evidence.

APPEAL TO THE PUBLIC.

When the s.s. "Professor" leaves Hongkong, about the end of May or the early part of June, for Home, she will have on board the last batch of British soldiers for demobilization who have been serving with the British Siberian Expedition.

Their voyage home, we trust, will be most pleasant, but it will be a long one, and the days at sea are best beguiled, after hours spent in listening to what the wild waves are saying, in indulgence in reading matter and such games as will appeal to the grown-up, and can be played in restricted spaces on board ship. So, look over your collections of books, magazines, and games and send what you can spare to the China Mail to be turned over to the soldiers. They will be called for at our office by a committee of British soldiers stationed in Hongkong, who will deliver them on board the "Professor" before she sails.

In sending these contributions, please furnish us with your name and address.

UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND FOR SUGAR IN AMERICA.

Due to the failure of the Cuban sugar crop, there is an unprecedented demand from America for sugar from the Orient. Cargo is being loaded here for rapid transit to America, some going direct to New York, through the Panama Canal, and other lots going to the West Coast of the United States for distribution.

In England, it is stated that either the price of that commodity must rise to 4 or else the government must subsidize the product to the tune of twenty million sterling.

Sugar is received here, principally from Java, the Philippines and Singapore, for refining, but so fast are cargoes arriving that it is said the refineries cannot keep up with the demands, and many sugar shippers are resorting to shipping the raw product to America.

Recent quotations and reports of sales of sugar are as follows:—Java Rough White $24.32 $29.50 per picul, sales 27,099.60 piculs; Java Fine White $23.06 $27.73 per picul, sales 5,624.20 piculs; Java Rough Brown $21.00 $23.63 per picul, sales 6,755 piculs; Java Molasses $15.55 $16.80 per picul, sales 11,556.60 piculs; Java Strop $12.55 per picul, sales 777 piculs; Iloilo No. 2, $14.80 per picul, sales 3,300 piculs; Iloilo No. 3, $13.90 per picul, sales 7,790 piculs; Iloilo No. 4, $12.70 per picul, sales 750 piculs; Iloilo No. 5, $11.60 per picul, sales 300 piculs; Manila Black $11.20 per picul, sales 4,000 piculs; Hoihow Brown $14.50 per picul, sales 4,000 piculs; Singapore Candy $23.00 per picul, sales 500 piculs.

The market is reported as strong and excited owing to the American demand. Sugar dealers locally were uncommunicative when approached on the subject this morning. As some of them are mere gamblers, we can understand their reticence.

ANOTHER MAY WEDDING.

STRANGE-SCOTT.

Mr. H. E. Strange of the R.A.M.C. and Miss Matilda Grace Scott, daughter of the late Captain and Mrs. A. Scott, of Greenock, Scotland, were united in marriage yesterday afternoon, by the Rev. M. W. Shewell, Chaplain to the Forces. The ceremony was a quiet one, only the personal friends of the bridegroom being present.

The bride wore a dress of ivory satin, covered with shadow lace and trimmed with orange blossoms, white heather and pearls. She wore a veil surmounted with orange blossoms and carried a handsome bouquet of white flowers. She was attended by Miss Irene Jenkins and Miss Girls Glendinning who wore dresses of pale blue charmeuse with shepherdess bonnets to match. Master Reginald Wood made a handsome page boy.

At the conclusion of the marriage service the wedding party adjourned to the King Edward Hotel where an enjoyable reception was held.

Mr. and Mrs. Strange left for Macao for their honeymoon, the bride's travelling dress being grey georgette. She wore a yellow straw picture hat.

ST. JOHN'S CATHEDRAL
WAR MEMORIAL.

The China Mail learns that a cross in memory of men of St. John's Cathedral who fell in the great war is to be erected on a site in the Cathedral grounds. Plans have already been prepared and the memorial promises to be an artistic and fitting reminder of those men whom we honour. The cross will be constructed of granite obtained in Hongkong and will be fifteen feet in height, with a width at the base of 8 feet. It will be a Norman cross and on the face of the granite will be inscribed another cross of bronze. The inscription will read "In memory of the men of this Cathedral who fell in the great European war 1914-1919."

Canton Christians are working to enroll 100,000 men and women to fight against the gambling evil now being licensed by the government and secretly protected by the soldiers.

Hongkong, May 20, 1920.

NOTICE.

THE Management of the "China Mail" desires to inform the public that its tariff for advertisements received on and after this date will be increased by 20 per cent.

This increase is rendered imperative by the constantly growing cost of production, the price of paper alone having advanced by 100 per cent during the past five years.

In order to meet these conditions newspapers and magazines all over the world have been obliged to raise their subscription and advertising rates—in some cases by as much as 100 per cent—and, at the same time, to curtail the size and number of pages. For the present, however, it has been decided, in the interests of the public generally and of advertisers in particular, to leave the price of the "China Mail" unchanged.

Hongkong, May 17, 1920.

TO SECRETARIES OF CLUBS AND OTHER INSTITUTIONS.

AS from to-day, all preliminary notices of forthcoming meetings, lectures and entertainments, sent for insertion in the news columns of the "China Mail" will be charged for at the rate of $1 each, providing they do not occupy more than four lines. If this space is exceeded they will be placed in the advertising columns at the prevailing rates.

ROMANTIC WEDDING.

RESULT OF BOARD-SHIP ATTACHMENT.

The marriage took place in the Colombo Magistrate's Court by special licence, on April 26 of Mr. A. MacGregor, of Rangoon, and Lady Florence M. Pringle. Both the parties arrived in Colombo on April 24 by the Gloucestershire on board of which they had met for the first time. They left for Rangoon by the same steamer. Lady Pringle is the widow of the late Sir Norman Robert Pringle, Bart., and a daughter of the late Mr. J. Vaughan.

Sir Norman Hamilton Pringle, Bart., who succeeded his father in the baronetcy, arrived in Colombo by the same steamer to learn planting.

EFFECT OF THE U.S. SEAMAN'S ACT.

CAUSED CHINESE TO DESERT THEIR SHIPS.

Although the American immigration laws forbid the entry of Asiatics into the United States, it is estimated that more than 10,000 Chinese seamen have gained entrance into the port of New York during the past year and have deserted their ships. The steamship companies which employ the Chinese to serve on the ships which operate under British registry report that they have had about 100 per cent. of desertions owing to the provisions in the Seaman's Act which gives them shore leave.

The three largest lines which have steamers from the Orient to New York are the Standard Transportation Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New York; the Barber Steamship Lines, and the Dollar Steamship Company.

The motive of the Chinaman is not so much the desire to enter the United States as it is to take advantage of the higher wage which is paid the American seamen (says the New York Journal of Commerce).

Under the provisions of the Seaman's Act there is a clause which guarantees that any foreign seaman whose vessel docks in an American port has a right to land. He is issued a seaman's identification card and is given liberty in the port. According to H. S. Sisson, the Chinese inspector in charge for this port, neither the immigration service nor the steamship owner is responsible for the return of the seamen to the ship. Therefore it is easy for them to desert the vessel upon which they came into this country. However, if they "abandon their calling" they are subject to arrest.

As the result of this practice the steamship companies, which employ the Chinamen as seamen, cooks and firemen, are forced to sign on another crew at a rate equal to or in excess of the American scale. Singularly, they state that no trouble of this kind is experienced in the Pacific ports, as the inspectors on the coast will not permit the Chinese to land.

At Hongkong, Shanghai, and other Chinese ports the owners of the British ships sign on a crew at the Chinese scale, which is about 20dols. gold per month. It requires about one-third more Chinese to operate a tanker or freighter than the captain would have under his command if the men were Americans. However, it costs less to pay the Chinese, they do not eat as much, and are satisfied with living conditions that would not be gratifying to the American seaman. At the Chinese port the crew is signed on for a round voyage. Otherwise they could not come to the United States, as the immigration laws forbid their entrance as immigrants.

Upon arriving at New York the inspectors board the ship and issue to each seaman an identification card, which enables him to go ashore. Provided he ships "foreign," the inspectors are not concerned with the decision of the seaman as to what vessel he will sign on. It is understood that the Chinese seamen come ashore and are then taken in row by a "wise guy" or a boarding-house keeper, who informs him that he can get 90 dols or 100 dols. per month provided he will desert the ship upon which he came into this country and ship out on another.

The lure of this gold has proved too strong for the Chinese. As the result of this system the steamship companies must provide themselves with other crews. Instead of hiring them at the Chinese scale they are forced to pay at least the American scale, and sometimes must yield a premium. It is not practicable to replace the Chinese with Americans, as the ships are fitted out with crew quarters for the Orientals, and they cannot accommodate other nationals. While a great many British ships operate from China to British ports, no trouble is experienced in holding the crews, as the British authorities do not permit a Chinaman to land. Steamship operators here are at a loss to learn why the Chinese are permitted to land in New York and are forbidden to do so in San Francisco or Seattle.

CURE FOR IRELAND.

Sir Horace Plunkett, in an interview, suggested the complete abolition of the old machinery of coercion and the release of political prisoners. There was no need for a complete withdrawal of the army provided that the army ceased to do police work. Let it be what it used to be—a garrison for holding strategic points against the foreigner, not against the Irish. In the place of Castle rule a Provisional Government should be set up, consisting exclusively of Irishmen, and charged with the task of maintaining order. He believed that if it was generally understood that this Government was Irish and was maintaining Irish law it would receive a general support in its temporary task. The Irish were naturally orderly if left alone, and there was a fair chance that they would take this opportunity of proving the fact.

Then the country should proceed to elect a National Constituent Assembly, preferably by Proportional Representation. This Assembly would be charged with the construction of the Irish Constitution. Two points of doubt immediately arose. What would Ulster's attitude be? He did not think it would be obstructive, provided there was a genuine willingness on the part of the South to give guarantees and provincial rights and securities. Then came the Sinn Fein issue. Of course it was difficult to say what Sinn Fein really would accept, because the Government denied them all means of self-expression. A persecuted movement, driven underground, naturally swings to the left, but if persecution of a purely political nature ceased there might be a strong reaction to the right. In this case Sinn Fein would accept the Constituent Assembly as being an Irish institution, and would contribute to the creation of the new Constitution. Of course no one could prophesy with any big claims to accuracy, especially in a country where political conditions were changing so rapidly. What was really vital was the resurrection of confidence, and this could only be done by the closing down of Castle rule as now understood.

In the poisoned air of to-day there could be no healthy growth. Coercion and crime work in a vicious circle, like prices and wages, and the circle had somehow to be broken. At present constitutional thought was crushed between the extremes of violence and counter-violence. Mr. Lloyd George's bill had made the atmosphere worse rather than better, because it showed that England was very careful about its pledges to the Irish minority of Ulster, and very lax about its pledges to the Irish majority of the South and West.

The suggestions he had made for reconstruction were purely tentative, but he could see no other basis for a settlement. If once the bitterness of feeling could be mollified by a reversal of administrative policy, the idea of a National Constituent Assembly might receive support in quarters which to-day were full of bitterness and despair. The demand for such an assembly is supported by the Irish Dominion League, a body with a steadily growing influence. Its policy is expounded week by week in the Irish Statesman.

THE ANTHRAX PERIL.

SUDDEN DEATH OF COONOR RE IDENT.

Madras, April 28.—The death took place this morning of Mr. John Edward Donnison, at Lawley Hospital, Coonor, after a brief illness. A tragic feature lay in the fact that he contracted anthrax from a shaving brush bought at a general auction of the Canadian Red Cross Society of London. Mr. Donnison arrived from home last week and used the brush on the day of his arrival, having left his original brush in the train. Symptoms appeared on Thursday, but inflammation of the lingual gland which was involved was not apparent until Sunday morning, when an operation was performed by Dr. Milton and Assistant Surgeon Mr. La Frenais. In spite of their assiduous attention, deceased collapsed suddenly yesterday evening. Mr. Donnison may be said to be one of the pioneers of commercial enterprise in the South, coming out over 40 years ago to the well-known firm of Messrs. Macdowell and Co.

NATION'S BALANCE-SHEET.

The Government's financial year ended in April and they issued as usual a statement of the revenue and expenditure for the whole period. The most remarkable thing about it is the havoc it plays with both the Budget estimates and the revised estimates made in October.

Another surprising thing is the immensity of the income and expenditure since the return made up on the 20th March. The revenue up to then was £1,231,397,197; now it totals £1,339,571,381, showing that some of the departments had paid very large sums into the Exchequer during the last few days. The expenditure since has been no less than £143,322,511, and now totals £1,565,772,928, or nearly £234 millions above the October estimate and £214 millions above the Budget expectations. In October the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced that he and his advisers were of opinion that the revenue had been over-estimated by £32,450,000 and the expenditure under-estimated by £191,195,000, so that instead of the deficit now being £250,000,000, as was at first expected, it would probably be £473,645,000. As a matter of fact, the revenue was under-estimated by £138 millions and the expenditure by £214 millions.

The Budget estimates of revenue and expenditure, the revised figures issued in October, and the amount now reported to have been received in the financial year are as follows:—

The Budget estimate of the expenditure allowed £15,190,000 for contingencies.

One great upsetting factor was the decision to continue to purchase food supplies. This cut off £65,000,000 which the Treasury had expected to realise on the sale of stocks, the receipt of that money being postponed. On the other hand, a few other items were found likely to exceed expectations. The upshot was that the Budget estimate of £209,700,000 in miscellaneous receipts was reduced to £150,000,000.

The following are the details of the revenue with the Budget and October estimates added, all the figures having three 0's omitted:—

	Budget	October	Actual
Expenditure	£151,000,000	£143,322,511	£143,322,511

TENNIS.

HANDICAP SINGLES.

The final of the class A Handicap Singles in connection with the Hongkong Cricket Club tennis tournament was decided last evening, F. A. Redmond (ows 15/3) beating Capt. Oliver (scr) 3-6, 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3. Oliver started off well, playing very carefully, and taking the first two games. Redmond took the next but could not make up the lost ground, Oliver taking the set 6-3. The next two sets saw Redmond playing a much better game. He took the second set 6-2, and displaying good placing powers in the next set took it 6-3. Both players seemed tired in the fourth set, the play falling away. Oliver brought the score to 2-2 by winning the set 6-3. The opening of the final set was marked by cautious play. Oliver got the first two games and then Redmond made the match safe by taking five games in succession. He took the set 6-3.

Today's match is Ng. Sze Kwong and A. H. Rumjahn against M. K. Lo and M. W. Lo in the final of the open doubles championship.

"Keepkool" Underwear

FOR MEN.

THE NEW IDEA IN SUMMER UNDERWEAR.

"The Only Elastic Ribbed Porous Underwear."

WITH the advance of civilization the question of dress ever becomes a matter of greater importance. Particularly in tropical climates any article of dress that tends to mitigate the suffering caused by extreme heat is sure to find a cordial reception.

Discriminating people everywhere have been educated to know that underwear is the article of apparel that really requires the greatest care in its selection. The ideal underwear for hot weather must be light in weight, durable, absorbent and elastic. For these reasons the porous principle in underwear is the solution of the hot-weather problem. The pores in the fabric are in reality little cells that permit the air to circulate between the outer clothing and the skin. These little chambers allow the heat from the body to evaporate before it has a chance to condense and form perspiration, thus keeping the body dry and cool.

Underwear however, must be more than porous to be comfortable; it must be elastic. Elasticity is of prime importance as it allows the garment to give full play to the movements of the body and prevents it from chafing and binding. Keepkool underwear is the only brand that fulfils all of these necessary conditions. It is porous for coolness, elastic for comfort, look stitched for durability, and absorbent for health. No other brand selling at popular prices contains all of these necessary features.
